20. Write a precis of the following passage and give a suitable title to it :

There are two kinds of books, good books and bad books. I am not to assume that you are not acquainted with his plain and simple fact, but I may remind you that it is becoming a very important consideration in our day. And we have to cast aside together the idea people have, that if they are reading any books they are doing rather better than nothing at all. I must earnestly call that idea to question; I even venture to deny that. It would be much safer, better for many a reader that he had no concern with books at all. There is number, a frightfully increasing number of books that are decidedly not useful at all. But an igneous reader will learn also that a certain number of books are written by a supremely noble kind of people, who are fit to occupy all your reading industry.

Or

Neither wealth nor rank will ensure happiness. Without love and charity and peace of mind you may be rich and great and powerful, but you cannot be happy. There is a Persian story that the great king being out of spirits consulted his magicians, and was told that happiness could be ensured by wearing the shirt of a perfectly happy man. The country was searched in vain. No such man could be discovered. At last a labourer coming from his work was found to fulfil the condition; he was absolutely happy. But alas the remedy was far off as ever. The man had no shirt. Sir Walter Scott's last words to Lockhart on his death bed were. "Be virtuous—be religious—be a good man. Nothing else will be any comfort when you come to lie here."

21. Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below it :

Old Behrman was a painter who lived on the ground floor beneath them. He was past sixty and had a Michael Angelo's Moses beard curling down from the head of a satyr along the body of an imp. Behrman was a failure in art. Forty years he had wielded the brush without getting near enough to touch the hem of his Mistress's robe. He had been always about to paint a masterpiece, but had never yet begun it. For several years he had painted nothing except now and then a daub in the line of commerce of advertising. He earned a little by serving as a model to those young artists in the colony who could not pay the price of a professional. He drank gin to excess, and still talked of his coming masterpiece. For the rest he was a fierce little old man, who scoffed terribly at softness in anyone, and who regarded himself as especial mastiff-in-waiting to protect the young artists in the studio above.

Questions (any four) :

(i) Who was Behrman and where did he live ?

(ii) How did Behrman earn his livelihood ?

(iii) What was Behrman's wish ?

(iv) Was he a successful artist ?

(v) How old was Behrman ?

(a) a great Italian artist.

(b) ... a great leader of Israelites.

22. Read the following passage carefully and answer the question given below it :

Some frogs who lived in a large pond wished to have a king to rule over them, but they could not decide which of them should be chosen. So, they asked Jupiter, the king of the Gods, to send them a king. Jupiter, saying, "This is your king", dropped a heavy log into the pool. In the course of time, the frogs got used to the log which only floated and did nothing. So, they requested Jupiter for a new exciting king. This time, Jupiter sent them a stork to rule over them and it was not long before the new king was moving about, among his subjects, gobbling up as many as he could catch. The frogs fled in terror to the bottom of the pool. They asked Jupiter to take away the cruel king. But, Jupiter refused to do so.

Questions (any four) :

(i) Where did the frogs live ?

(ii) Who was Jupiter ?

(iii) Why were the frogs not satisfied with the log as the king ?

(iv) Where did the frogs take refuge from the stork ?

(v) What did the frogs ask Jupiter ?

(vi) Give the synonym of the word 'subjects' with reference to the passage.
